FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Independence Caucus endorses Barbara Alby for California State Senate, District One

California (October 4th, 2010) – The Independence Caucus is proud to announce their support for State Senate candidate Barbara Alby. The Independence Caucus carefully chooses candidates based on an extensive vetting process and after running the gauntlet, Barbara can now count herself as one of the Independence Caucus family of endorsed candidates.

Barbara Alby is truly an American success story. At one time, a welfare mom and domestic violence victim, today, she is the Acting Board Member for the State Board of Equalization's Second District (California's Tax Board).

The same tenacity and inner strength that helped her at critical moments in her early life served her well in 1993 when she was elected to the California Legislature, representing the Sacramento area. Foremost among Barbara's legislative accomplishments are laws to protect women and children from sexual predators. She is the author of Megan's Law in California. As well as her landmark legislation that now allows police to arrest for "probable cause" in domestic violence. This law has been a significant intervention tool saving women in violent relationships.

As a successful businesswoman, and Conservative Leader, she has a proven record as a tireless advocate for the taxpayer and business community. Protecting taxpayers is not new to her. Each and every year that she served in the state Assembly she was named "Tax Fighter of the Year" by the National Taxpayer Limitation Committee.

In a letter to her, President Ronald Reagan wrote to her "“You can be proud of the accomplishments you have achieved for the people of California through your effort in defense of the unalienable right to life, the traditional family, moral values and the rights and responsibilities of parents.”"

We here at the Independence Caucus are proud to announce our endorsement of this fine principled candidate, Barbara Alby, for State Senate District One.

The Independence Caucus was started by volunteers who came together while working to elect Jason Chafetz to Congress in 2008. Fed up with unsustainable spending in Washington and total disregard for Constitutional limits on governmental authority, Independence Caucus founders realized that incumbents from both parties have been compromised by the "Big Money" special interest groups who fund their perpetual re-election campaigns. They embarked on a mission to sniff out and expose the incumbent's political money trails and train others across the country exactly how to boot compromised politicians out of office and replace them with candidates that will actually listen to and represent their constituents.

The organization has hundreds of researchers and volunteers across the country working to put America back on track.
